Divide and Conquer is a technique that uses recursion to break a problem into sub-problems until they can be solved directly. The solutions are then put together to solve the original problem.

This algorithm can be used to solve MSP by dividing the initial array in halves until there is one element left, then comparing the maximum sums of each subsequence until there is only one maximum sum.